USS Idaho Awarded Efficiency Pennant

THE USS Idaho, battleship of the Battle Force, and commanded by Capt. Henry L. Wyman, USN, has won the Battle Efficiency Pennant in the battleship class for the competitive year ending June 30, 1931.

The Battle Efficiency Pennant is one of the most prized awards in the Fleet, and is presented to the man-o'-war which makes a higher combined score in gunnery, engineering and communications than any other ship of her class. Competition for the Battle Efficiency Pennant commences on July 1 of each year, and throughout the strenuous operating schedule afloat that follows, naval personnel in the Fleet follow keenly the rules of the "game" issued by the Division of Fleet Training in the Navy Department.

In capturing highest honors in the Fleet, the Idaho has the privilege of streaming a replica of the famous Battle Efficiency Pennant from her fore truck day and night whenever she is at anchor during the competitive year which expires June 30, 1932. The original Battle Efficiency Pennant—measuring 15 feet in length—is of red silk and has a black disc in its field. This is usually displayed in the wardroom of the winning ship. Names of the ships which have won it since 1911, when it was first placed in competition, are emblazoned in silk on the original pennant.

In the Fleet, the Battle Efficiency Pennant is familiarly known as the "meat ball." It was so called in the early days of competition because of its close resemblance to the red pennant which flies at the port yardarm of naval ships during meal hours.

This past year, in winning the Battle Efficiency Pennant, the Idaho captured first place in gunnery, for which she was awarded the Navy Department's bronze plaque trophy for excellence in shooting. This trophy carries the names of battleships which have won the gunnery trophy since 1903, the year gunnery competition was inaugurated in the Navy on a competitive scoring basis. In addition, the Idaho will wear on her fire control tower, from which her twelve 14-inch (Please turn to Next Page)

Plan for Re-Warehousing

Baltimore, Md.—Post Quartermasters and representative personnel of the various Quartermaster activities from fourteen Army posts and stations of the 3rd Corps Area met in Baltimore Monday, July 27, for a conference on plans for putting into effect the new warehousing system recently adopted for use by the Quartermaster Corps throughout the service.

Increased efficiency, as well as a reduction in "paper work" in connection with supply, particularly for organization commanders, is claimed for the new system when fully operating. It is expected that installation at all but a few of the larger posts throughout the 3rd Corps Area will be completed by Jan. 1, 1932.

A total of 111 attended the conference and were guests of Col. Alvin K. Baskette, Corps Area Quartermaster, at luncheon in the War Memorial Building. Among those attending were: Col. William R. Gibson, Capt. Charles O. Thrasher, Herbert W. Hardman, and Ezra Davis, from the Quartermaster General's office in Washington.

Posts and stations represented at the conference included the following: Aberdeen Proving Ground; Army Medical Center; Army War College; Bolling Field; Carlisle Barracks; Edgewood Arsenal; Langley Field; Ft. George G. Meade; Ft. Howard; Ft. Washington; Ft. Monroe; Ft. Myer; Ft. Hoyle, and Ft. Humphreys.

Survey Made of Sea And Shore Vacancies

THE Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, has completed a survey of the expected vacancies at sea, normally to be filled by commanders and lieutenant commanders, and of the vacancies on shore in billets normally to be filled by officers of the same grades.

The survey of expected vacancies at sea, forecast until Sept., 1932, reveals that there will be 211 billets available. To fill these there will be a total of 199 officers of these grades due for sea service in the same period. Four of these go to submarines, while five additional will be drawn from aviation making a net number of 200 available.

Some of this deficiency probably will be made up by reassignment of recently promoted lieutenant commanders who are now filling lieutenants' billets and who are remaining at sea through 1932.

The survey of expected vacancies at sea disclosed the following condition until Sept., 1932:

Lt. Kellers' Discoveries

WHILE with the solar eclipse expedition from the United States Naval Observatory, based at the island of Niuaofu, 300 miles southwest of Samoa, during 1930, Lt. Henry C. Kellers, MC, USN, obtained some very interesting specimens of animal life for the Smithsonian Institution, which speaks of them as "important discoveries."

The National Museum, which received the various specimens, has written to the Navy Department praising the work of Lieutenant Kellers.

The National Museum states that thanks to Lieutenant Kellers' labors they are now in possession of several rare species of which adequate representation was heretofore lacking, and of large series of other forms which, because of the absence of sufficient materials in the museums of this country and of Europe, have not been properly understood.

The letter from the National Museum explains:

"More important than this, however, is the discovery by Lieutenant Kellers of one of the most remarkable new genera of sea-urchins that has ever come to light,—a curiously generalized form from which three wholly dissimilar types might possibly be assumed to have radiated.

"The first species of Heterocentrotus was described in 1705, and the genus itself was described in 1835. The first species of Colobocentrotus was described in 1758, and the genus was described in 1835. The first species of Echinometra was figured in 1554 and the genus was described in 1825.

Tightening Control Of Reservists Seen

AN "unmistakable trend toward exercising direct control by the Regular Army establishment over individuals in the Organized Reserves" is seen by Col. Walter C. Cole, Air-Res., of Detroit, former national president of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, and long an outstanding leader in national defense affairs.

Pointing out that the War Department "has long since given up any thought of exercising direct control over individuals in the National Guard," Colonel Cole sees that "from happenings here and there it seems quite clear that it is the desire of the Regular Army to place the members of the Organized Reserves on a permanent military status at all times."

"If a member of the Organized Reserves," he declares, "is constantly in the military service, he has had taken away from him his constitutional right of free speech, free assembly and freedom of movement."

In an article in the Reserve Officer, published by the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, Colonel Cole points to a number of instances of military control over the Reserves as individuals. He concludes with the challenge, "Shall we retain our independence as civilians, or shall we submit to military control at all times?"

"There is developing," Colonel Cole declares, "a distinct cleavage respecting the status of reserve officers. Is a reserve officer, not on active duty, by and with his consent, a civilian, or is he, at all times, a member of the military establishment and consequently subject to the Articles of War?"

"The Army of the United States is (Please turn to Page 1156)

Cavalry Mechanization

MUCH interest is being evidenced in the important experimentation to be carried on this Fall and Winter in the mechanizing of a Cavalry regiment. Formal decision has not yet been made as to the designation of the regiment to be mechanized, but it is expected that an announcement will be made shortly on that subject as well as to the future station of the organization.

In the meanwhile the present Mechanized Force at Ft. Eustis, Va., is continuing its valuable work of testing, experimenting and training. A maintenance section, consisting of 1st Lt. James B. Edmunds, QMC (Cav.), and 14 enlisted mechanics and 5 motor vehicles, has arrived from Camp Holabird and is working with the Mechanized Force. Lt. Col. Adna Chaffee, Cav., has joined the Force as its executive officer. Colonel Chaffee formerly was with G-3 of the War Department General Staff, in which capacity he made highly important and valuable staff studies on the functions and future of this type of fighting force.

Actual transformation of the present force into a Cavalry regiment probably will wait until the Fall, when the Summer training season is completed.

What is hoped for in organizing the Cavalry regiment (mechanized) is that that unit will be able to demonstrate that it can perform the functions and normal duties of a Cavalry regiment in warfare, nothing more for the time being and nothing less if it is to be considered a success.

Use of Gas Explained By General Gilchrist

DURING the Spring and Summer of 1931, the Chemical Warfare Service has made some experiments at Edgewood Arsenal, involving the spraying of mustard gas from a low-flying airplane. Certain newspapers, hearing of these experiments, published articles which it is feared will give to the public a wrong idea of the danger to be apprehended from such use of mustard gas in war.

At the same time, these articles, while indicating that the experiments had a defensive side in connection with the development of protection against mustard gas, minimized this aspect, playing up the offensive use of mustard gas in a sensational way to catch the public eye. In order to counteract to some extent possible misconceptions which might arise, the Army and Navy Journal has obtained from Maj. Gen. Harry L. Gilchrist, Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, the following explanation of what mustard gas is, its value and limitations as an offensive weapon, and the steps being taken by the Chemical Warfare Service to develop protection against it.

General Gilchrist's Explanation
"Mustard gas, as it is commonly called, is a liquid at ordinary temperatures and pressures, freezing at 57.2 degrees Fahrenheit, and boiling at 417.2 degrees Fahrenheit. Its chemical name is dichloroethylsulphide, and its formula is C₁H₂CH₂S CH₂CH₂Cl. When pure, it is practically colorless, but usually it is dark brown due to impurities. The odor is not strong, resembling that of water-cress.

"For protection against mustard gas, a gas mask is not sufficient, because in addition to its irritating effect on the respiratory system, it is highly vesicant, that is, it burns the skin if it comes in contact with either in the form of vapor or as a liquid, the blistering effect being much greater when the mustard gas is in the liquid form (although it never kills). If dispersed by high explosive, in shell or bombs, mustard gas is, of course, very finely divided, but larger droplets are obtained by sprinkling from airplanes. This method, therefore, will produce greater casualties, especially (Please turn to Back Page)

Editors Praise Stand Against Wearing Of Uniforms In Dry Arrests

IN THE recent occurrence in Philadelphia, where a policeman wore his Naval Reserve uniform in effecting a prohibition arrest, the press has emphatically supported Secretary of the Navy Adams' action in directing the dismissal of the offender from the Naval Reserve. The press has been equally emphatic in chiding Director of Public Safety Schofield of Philadelphia. On June 27, Charles Paul Lang, Baker first class, USNR, is alleged, while wearing the uniform of a chief petty officer of the Navy, to have detected two men violating the State liquor laws, in Broad St. Station, Philadelphia, and, aided by another member of the Philadelphia Police Force, arrested both men. On receipt of the reports of this incident, Secretary Adams consulted with Rear Adm. David F. Sellers, Judge Advocate General of the Navy, and was advised that Lang was amenable under the law for trial by general court martial for conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline, under specifications of unauthorized and misuse of the naval uniform. The sentence for conviction would carry imprisonment and dishonorable discharge. Feeling that the offense in this case did not warrant such severe action, Secretary Adams directed that the man be dismissed.

"SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ADAMS is to be commended for having dismissed from the Naval Reserve a Philadelphia policeman who wore his naval uniform while taking part in the arrest of two violators of the prohibition laws," says the Providence, R. I., News Tribune. "The Secretary has not, as the Philadelphia Director of Public Safety says, made 'a mountain out of a molehill.' He has very properly emphasized the fact that it is no part of the Navy's duty to appear in our towns or cities and help to punish civilians who break the Volstead Act. * * *

"We have not heard much in recent years of attempts to secure the aid of the Army and Navy in enforcing prohibition, but we used to hear a great deal. Such use of either arm would speedily make the service thoroughly unpopular. * * * Such an abuse of the uniform as took place in Philadelphia was an outrage against public decency and an insult to the Navy."

"THE uniform of our Army or our Navy is worn for just one purpose—the defense of our institutions when they are threatened and the maintenance of preparedness in time of peace," states the Troy, N. Y., Record (Independent Republican). "When the uniform is used for some purpose which has no connection with the service, it may be misunderstood."

"This country still relies on its Army and Navy for the security which may be necessary at no distant period. While the talk of disarmament is proceeding there is no assurance that it will soon result in the scrapping of the Navy and the elimination of the Army. When we see the uniform of a sailor or a soldier we feel that our interests are being safeguarded. If those uniforms were used for questionable purposes it would not be long before they would be viewed with more or less suspicion by the public. The Navy was right and the Director of Public Safety of Philadelphia was wrong in this case."

"THE measure of control which the Navy Department has over the police in Philadelphia may be subject to question," announces the Nashua, N. H., Telegraph (Republican). "Much sentiment backs the Navy in its order to the police department of that city which forbids its police officers to don the uniform of the Navy while engaged in the work of sleuthing for bootleggers in that city. It was a needless and unconscionable reflection on the men of the Navy, doubtless one which the enlisted man as well and the commissioned officer resented equally, and it is doubtful if an officer dressed up as a naval officer can be any more efficient in his search for liquor offenders."

In engineering, the past year, the Idaho stood fourth in the steaming competition, and by virtue of having made over 95 per cent of the ship's engineering score, will wear a painted red "E" on her boiler smokestack. In communications, the Idaho stood fourth in battleships, and by her score in this radio and signal competition, added a multiple to her battle efficiency score.

Captain Wyman will receive a letter of commendation from the President of the United States, and certain officers designated by him will receive letters of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy for their part in winning the Battle Efficiency Pennant. Certain enlisted men of the gunnery department have been paid prize money and will have the privilege of wearing a white "E" on the sleeves of their uniforms during the next competitive year. In like manner, designated enlisted personnel in the engineer force have been paid prize money, and will wear a red "E" on the sleeves of their uniforms.

The Idaho at present is operating with the Battle Force, and is scheduled to arrive at the Navy Yard, Norfolk, Oct. 1, for modernization. The 12-year-old veteran, of pre-War design, will receive a two-year modernization overhaul, during which her fighting equipment will be brought up to date.

The Department made public the standing of battleships, light cruisers, destroyers, gunboats and tenders in engineering for the competitive year.

International Rifle

DESPITE the fact that the first international small bore rifle team the United States has ever sent abroad, lost to the British at the small bore meeting at Bisley, England, July 6 to 11, 1931, the American riflemen pushed the English to the limit to win by a two-point margin, 3,927 to 3,925.

Firing under a strain, after an ocean voyage and only five days of practice on the strange range the team members justified their presence there, especially in the individual matches in which the Americans were eligible to compete.

Maj. Julian S. Hatcher, OD, USA, captain of the American team, captured first honors in the Webley and Scott Pistol Competition, by shooting a perfect score of 100. Ens. Harry N. Renshaw, USCG, Coach of the team, took second place with a score of 98. R. H. McGarity was adjutant of the team.

Two members of the American team also captured first and second in the Grand Aggregate Match, Dr. E. O. Swanson and F. Johansen being the two winners. The feat, however, most worthy of note was the showing of the Americans in the Telescopic Sights Competition, when members of the team took the first 12 places. This is

"JUST how serious a thing it is to use the Navy uniform of a country to enforce the laws of that country is for petty fiddlers to argue, but a great many persons will share the sentiments of Director Schofield of the Philadelphia Police Department in branding Navy Department criticism as 'small potatoes,'" claims the Harrisburg, Pa., Patriot (Independent Democratic).

"Apparently the Navy bureaucrats view placidly the use of Navy uniforms on burlesque show comedians and movie actors, but when a policeman, who is also a Naval Reservist, wears his uniform to run down violators of the law and Constitution for the upholding of which the Navy is created, then the bigwigs at Washington assume an air of outraged decency and protest to the Mayor.

"The whole thing," says Director Schofield, "is a mountain in a molehill. It was stirred up and engineered by wet propagandists. Their plea fell on sympathetic ears."

"That is all very plausible and the Navy Department earns no new laurels by its foolish protest."

"THE Navy is not in the business of enforcing prohibition against civilians and cannot afford to be represented even remotely in raids and arrests with this object in view," holds the New York Herald Tribune (Independent Republican).

"Nothing of the kind can be countenanced. A strictly civil administration of the law must be maintained, and any involvement of the uniform, whether of the Army or the Navy, must be guarded against with meticulous care. We are fortunate in having in Mr. Adams a Secretary of the Navy who is scrupulously sensitive to his duty in this respect."

"THE Navy Department has taken energetic steps to stop the use of naval uniforms by policemen seeking violators of the prohibition law and has ordered the Philadelphia policeman, who made an arrest while disguised as a naval chief petty officer, dismissed from the Naval Reserve," notes the New London, Conn., Day (Republican). "This is a just punishment for the policeman who staged that cheap affair."

"EVEN if there was not a rigid Federal law to prevent the use of naval uniforms for purposes having no relation to the service which these uniforms represent, there would be something ugly about the spectacle of policemen snooping about in that disguise," holds the Philadelphia Public Ledger (Independent Republican). "The naval service, in its traditions and in the imagination of the people, is too far removed from the codes of Volstead to make that practice seem tolerable."

"Director Schofield refused to see that one of his men did any wrong in using a chief petty officer's uniform to aid him in trapping a bootlegger. But the offending policeman has just been ushered unceremoniously out of the Naval Reserve under pressure instantly exerted by no less a person than Secretary Adams. Since he deliberately violated one of the oldest laws of the land he would be ushered out of the police service too, if Director Schofield were not hopelessly fixed in his conviction that the dry law is the only law that really matters."

"NEVER did Director Schofield seem so much the flighty sophomore in public office as in his amazing verbal assault on Secretary Adams of the Navy after the Navy Department summarily visited routine punishment on one of the Director's dry-cops for misuse of the service uniform."

"But the episode is really important," states the Philadelphia Record (Independent). "No intelligent citizen will think it a trivial matter that the official responsible for law enforcement in this city should resort to law-breaking, and should display bad judgment and bad manners in the pursuit of a bad policy."

taken as an indication that shooting in this fashion, the Americans are superior shots.

The American team, which was the first international small bore team ever to be sent abroad to compete in a shoulder-to-shoulder match, was carefully selected by a committee of five men, Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Md. NG, Executive Vice President of the National Rifle Association; C. B. Lister, Secretary of the National Rifle Association; H. J. Wood, Elizabeth, N. J.; L. A. Pope, Los Angeles, Calif., and E. M. Farris, Portsmouth, Ohio.

The men were selected on the basis of their try-out scores, previous shooting records, and their shooter's characteristics. It is understood that the selection of members was one of the best that could have been made.

Ens. Harry N. Renshaw, USCG, internationally noted rifle and pistol shot is coach of the international team, Washington, D. C., for Camp Perry, July 30. He will join the Coast Guard Rifle team there.

In the main match between England and America the scores were very close, J. Johansen, of the American team, and F. S. Morse and H. S. Longhurst, of the British team, tied for high score with 397 apiece. The scores follow:

unexpected type among these animals, especially a new type belonging to a group (the family Echinometridae) the other outstanding types of which have all been known since 1758 cannot but be regarded as most unusual.

"It is no exaggeration to say that Dr. Kellers' discovery of this interesting creature is one of the most important discoveries that has been made in the well-worked field of shallow water sea-urchins in the past hundred years."

"The significance is emphasized by the fact that Lieutenant Kellers discovered not a single species but two quite distinct species."

The Smithsonian Institution has named these new sea-urchins Zenocentrotus, and the two included species are Zenocentrotus kellersi and Zenocentrotus paradoxus.

The superintendent of the Observatory, Capt. Julius F. Hellweg, USN, requested Lieutenant Kellers to bring some samples of odd wood from the island of Niuafof, with the result that among the 120-odd cases that returned from Niuafof were 4 cases containing a type of wood which grows in the lava on the island of Niuafof. In attempts to cut this wood the tools of the Observatory were blunted and dulled. The specimens of the wood were then turned over to the Smithsonian Institution, which reports that cutting and polishing the wood would be extremely difficult due to some substance in it which very rapidly wears away the cutting edge of all instruments. It took three men to carry one piece of wood upstairs, although the piece was only about 5 feet long and 6 or 8 inches in diameter. When a small piece was thrown into water it sank like a rock.

Lieutenant Kellers is now on duty as medical officer at the Navy Recruiting Office, Providence, R. I. His home address is 58 Rutledge Avenue, Charleston, S. C.

Cavalry Mission

are of the opinion that the missions of a Cavalry regiment are just as important today and will be in the future as they were in the days when the horse was the swiftest means of transportation. In mechanizing a Cavalry regiment they are merely to perform these missions with the equipment which in civil life has largely replaced the horse. They foresee no great change in tactics. Timing and spacing, of course, will undergo changes in using motor equipment, but otherwise they hope to see the mechanized Cavalry regiment, with its scout cars, combat vehicles and other motor equipment, going out ahead of the armies, screening and on reconnaissance—performing the same Cavalry functions which always have been so vital to the success of campaigns.

Col. Albert Phillips, Cav., writing in a recent issue of "Red Tape," speaking of Mechanized Cavalry, says:

"While the principles of warfare are immutable methods change constantly. To change is to progress. The tendency of the present age is towards an ever increasing application of scientific means. The World War brought forth the tank, war aviation, chemical and automotive developments and the application of large numbers of automatic weapons. The great gain in the relative power of the defense was due largely to the increased fire power of automatic weapons combined with obstacles and the absence of exposed flanks. Wars are fought in the future. To ever keep abreast of developments in the interests of national defense the War Department not only organized the experimental mechanized force but it also reaches out in every other direction to exploit the mechanical and scientific field of the nation. Witness the great strides in aviation. That there will be war in the air no one seriously doubts. And fighting machines for ground troops will play an ever increasing part."

Speaking of the horse, Colonel Phillips continues:

"Horsed cavalry will be with us until the machine can be developed to replace the horse. But let us not forget that machines are but accessories to the man and the horse. Machines, as such, cannot win a war—men are needed to gain information; to complete the rout of the enemy and to hold the ground gained. Maintenance of machines alone is for the present a great problem and in war it is and will be a tremendous problem. The army that develops the machine requiring minimum maintenance will have a decided advantage. Simplicity of design should rule."

"Our geographic location emphasizes the necessity of horsed cavalry for the future. The best force for fighting horsed cavalry is horsed cavalry. But develop the machine we must—both as a self-contained fighting force and as a powerful auxiliary of horsed cavalry and other arms."

... Another proof of BOEING QUALITY!

4,958 flying hours unmarred by accident and distinguished by remarkable aerial maneuvers! That record, set by the skilled pilots of the "Fighting Three," flying 18 Wasp powered Boeing fighters, won the coveted Schiff Memorial Trophy.

600,000 miles in close or open formations . . . 1,500 hours over open seas . . . 861 take-offs from airplane carriers and the same number of landings, 18 planes landing considerably faster than one a minute . . . close wing and tail parade formations . . . dog fighting far aloft . . . 300-mile-an-hour dives from freezing altitudes.

Such performance is ordinary routine for Boeing fighters. For into them—as into every type of Boeing plane, military and commercial—is built stamina for the hardest jobs a plane can tackle.

There is no substitute for Boeing quality.

Return From Nicaragua

Ft. Monmouth, N. J.—Tech. Sgt. Everett C. Smith, Signal Corps, with a detail of seven Signal Corps radio operators, reported at Ft. Monmouth July 27, after an absence of almost two years in Nicaragua. Sergeant Smith and his men have been on duty with the Engineer Corps Survey Commission which has been mapping the proposed canal route across Nicaragua.

This detail, which had its net control station at Headquarters in Granada, also maintained five stations with mapping parties in field, the most important of which were located at San Carlos, Ogea and San Juan del Norte.

At the time of the Nicaragua earthquake, stations operated by this detail were the only outlet for official traffic with the government and the American Red Cross for a period of 24 hours. After that time, commercial lines were placed in working order, but the Signal Corps unit also continued to handle a large portion of the traffic. With the small portable field radio sets designed and built by the Signal Corps Laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, daily contact was made by radio between Headquarters in Granada and Army headquarters at the Panama Canal.

Accompanying Sergeant Smith on this expedition, were: Sgt. Douglas F. Coburn, Jr., Privates Thomas O. Cresap, Alfred L. Castine, Paul E. Desquin, Henry Elliott, Paul T. Peters, and Allen Points.

Colonel Hase Goes South

COL. WILLIAM F. HASE, Office of Field Artillery, leaves tomorrow on a ten-day inspection trip in the South. He will visit Key West, Ft. Barrancas, Fla., and Ft. Moultrie, Charleston, S. C.

Navy Day Observance

IN response to a request from Mr. Walter Bruce Howe, of the Navy League of the United States, for naval cooperation in the tenth annual observance of Navy Day on October 27 of this year, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams has addressed a letter in reply stating that "on Navy Day, Tuesday, October 27, the public will be welcome on board naval vessels in port and in naval establishments on shore."

Adm. William V. Pratt, Chief of Naval Operations, has advised the naval service as a result that the Navy will cooperate with the Navy League of the United States in this year's observance of Navy Day, and in a letter to the service remarks: "It is desired to emphasize the fact that Navy Day is a day for receiving the citizens of our country on board ship and the various shore stations. It is the Navy's day at home, the Navy's opportunity to extend to the public an invitation for inspection, a day when visitors are received and entertained. . . . The fact that the birthday of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, whose statesmanship was responsible to a great extent for building up the American Navy, falls on Navy Day should be borne in mind."

The letter of invitation from the Navy League, and Secretary Adams' reply thereto, follow:

July 1, 1931.

The Honorable,
The Secretary of the Navy,
Navy Department,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Secretary:

It is my agreeable duty to inform you that the Navy League of the United States, with the aid of other patriotic, veterans' and civic societies, desires to sponsor the tenth annual observance of Navy Day on October 27, this year, and to ask that the Navy Department give the same valuable cooperation to the observance that it has given in former years.

Through the Navy Day observance, its sponsors desire not only to com-

Commends Lt. Williams

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ADAMS has sent a special letter of commendation to 1st Lt. Gregon A. Williams, USMC, now on duty in Nicaragua, for his service with the Nicaraguan Guardia Nacional.

Lieutenant Williams was in command of the District of Somoto of the Guardia Nacional for one year and during that period personally participated in numerous successful contacts against bandit forces. In each contact, Lieutenant Williams "displayed leadership, bravery, and judgment."

The Secretary's letter states:

"The ability and leadership you have shown made your service with the Nicaraguan National Guard especially valuable and I commend you heartily for your excellent performance of duty."

Lieutenant Williams was born in Carrollton, Ill., and enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1917. He was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in 1923. His father, Mr. T. G. Williams, resides in East San Diego, Calif.

memorate the great part the Navy has played in past times in making and keeping us a nation, but they wish also to foster a true understanding of the present state of the Navy and the proper part it plays in our national life.

You will be pleased to know, I am sure, of the widespread participation in Navy Day observances heretofore.

Last year favorable editorial comment was noted in papers having half the total daily circulation in the country, while criticism was rare. One hundred and sixty-three radio broadcasting stations took part, including chains of the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System. Every motion picture newsreel cooperated. Thirty-three governors of States and hundreds of mayors of cities issued proclamations of statements on the occasion. Programs in civic clubs, schools and churches numbered over a thousand. In our opinion, therefore, Navy Day is an effective means of promoting a better understanding of the Navy.

Such an undertaking is vital. When it is universally understood that the Navy does not provoke war but is an instrument of stability in a troubled world, the American people while supporting any plan of equitable and proportionate limitation of navies will reject the fallacy that a weak America will promote the peace of the world.

Sincerely yours,

(s) Walter Bruce Howe,
National Chairman for Navy Day.

Department of the Navy
Office of the Secretary
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Howe:

I beg to acknowledge your kind letter of July 1st, informing me that the Navy League of the United States desires to continue the observance of Navy Day as usual, and asking the Navy to cooperate in that observance as it has in the past.

The Navy deeply appreciates the interest the League takes in our service and I am very glad to assure you that on Navy Day, Tuesday, October 27th, the public will be welcome on board naval vessels in port and in naval establishments on shore, and that we shall be glad to do what lies in our power to acquaint our citizens with all sea services.

Navy Day, through the interest given it by the Navy League of the United States and the aid offered the League by patriotic, veteran and civic bodies, has brought to the American people a better understanding of the purposes, services and needs of the Navy, particularly its essential relation to the prosperity which comes from our national sea borne commerce.

I wish at this time also to express our appreciation of the Navy League's earnest and unselfish interest in the Navy, not only in sponsoring Navy Day for many years, but also in spreading information of interest on subjects that are of paramount importance to the defense of our shores and our commerce.

With most cordial regards, believe me

Very sincerely yours,

(s) C. F. Adams.

Mr. Walter Bruce Howe,
The Navy League of the United States,
Washington.

USS Pennsylvania Sails

THE USS PENNSYLVANIA, commanded by Capt. John M. Enochs, USN, and USS Arizona, Capt. Charles S. Freeman, USN, battleships which have been on the east coast for the past two years undergoing modernization, will sail today, Aug. 1, from Hampton Roads, Va., for the west coast to rejoin the Battle Force. En route their itinerary will be:

Arrive Guantanamo Aug. 5, depart Aug. 8.

Arrive Canal Zone Aug. 11, depart Aug. 15.

Arrive San Pedro Aug. 29.

Upon her arrival at San Pedro, the Pennsylvania will report to the Commander-in-Chief of the United States Fleet, Adm. J. V. Chase, USN, for duty as flagship of the United States Fleet, the position she held from 1916 to 1921. The Arizona will be assigned to Battleship Division 3 of the Battle Force.

The Pennsylvania and Arizona arrived at east coast yards July, 1929, for modernization. They will be "new" ships for the Pacific coast, for during their modernization their outward appearance as well as their strength as fighting ships were completely changed. The cage masts which were placed on the ships when built have been replaced in each by two masts of the new tripod type. Their turret guns will be able to elevate to greater angles at target practice. Certain secondary or broadside 5-inch guns have been raised, and their old 3-inch anti-aircraft guns have been replaced by new 5-inch air defense batteries.

Below the upper decks of the battleships there has been installed additional horizontal armor for protection against the fall of shot from high-angle gunfire and from aircraft bombs. "Blister"—continuous extra compartments built around the outer plating in the vicinity of the waterline—have been added to increase the defense against torpedo or underwater bomb damage. These "blisters" and the extra weight of armor normally would slow the speed of the 21-knot ships but modernization has included reboiling and the installation of new main and cruising turbines which will enable them to maintain normal fleet speed.

The ships have been given modernized fire control apparatus in order to improve the material placed in the hands of personnel aboard responsible for making hits with the ships' guns, and the Pennsylvania also has been fitted with an armored flag conning station.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY ADAMS announced this week that Karcher and Smith, 1520 Locust street, Philadelphia, have been selected as the architects for the new naval hospital in Philadelphia. The architects are to prepare plans for the construction of a 600-bed hospital which is to be erected on the site recently selected by the Navy and located between 16th and 19th streets, on the north side of Pattison avenue, immediately across from League Island Park.

Funds are now available for plans but not for the construction of the hospital. The Act of February 12, 1931, authorized the building of a hospital in the vicinity of Philadelphia, the building not to cost in excess of $3,000,000.

Air Reserve Training

Chicago, Ill.—The 14-day training camp for Air Corps Reserve officers, which was conducted at Scott Field, Ill., from July 5 to 18, inclusive had a much larger attendance than any camp previously held at that place, being attended by 71 reserve officers from various parts of the Sixth Corps Area. This total included heavier-than-air officers, lighter-than-air officers, and one medical reserve officer assigned to an Air Corps Reserve unit.

The camp was very successful in the number of hours flown, the total hours for the heavier-than-air officers being approximately 569, and for the lighter-than-air, approximately 127. The various missions carried out during the training of the reserve officers included local flights, landing practice, formation flying, and cross country. Planes were sent out in groups for cross country flights, landing, refueling, and returning from the designated fields. No accidents—of even a minor nature—occurred during the entire training period.

"as near Soissons as practicable . . ."

That's what the order read—and so along the winding road that follows the Aisne—by the shell torn villages of Venizel and Sermoise—the Cadillac roared through the night. Closer and closer to the mutilated spires of the cathedral that appeared and disappeared in the blinding flashes of the bombardment. Now on the rutted road, now clinging perilously on its very edge to escape a newly blasted shell crater, and finally stopping not three miles from the front lines. . . . Just a leaf turned back in a soldier's book of memories to remind him that today, as well as in that bitter time when the world was locked in combat, Cadillac is carrying on in a firm belief that craftsmanship and higher ideals will do the better job.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 1, 1931

"All must agree that Army and Navy officers are not being paid commensurate with their responsibilities nor are they getting enough to give them a decent livelihood."—SPRINGFIELD, MASS., NEWS.

IT USED TO BE SAID that there were three Armies being administered in the War Department, one by the Chief of Staff, one by the Assistant Secretary, and the third by the Assistant Secretary for Air. Today there is but one administration for one Army, and this happy situation is attributed to the policies inaugurated with the approval of Secretary Hurley by General MacArthur, Chief of Staff. Any questions affecting the several offices of the Department are discussed and determined in the War Council meetings attended by the Secretary, the Assistant Secretaries and the Chief of Staff. Any questions which come within the purview of the General Staff are considered and decided at meetings of the General Council. Thus an harmonious situation has been produced, which makes for wiser decision and greater efficiency. We congratulate Secretary Hurley and General MacArthur upon this satisfactory condition.

REPORTS CONTINUE TO BE circulated that the personnel of the Services is to be reduced. We are assured that nothing has transpired to confirm them with respect to the Army, but both the Navy and the Marine Corps are subjects of examination, and there is at present no certainty as to the action that may be taken with respect to them. President Hoover is in an extremely difficult situation. He is faced by the prospect of an enormous deficit at the end of the present fiscal year. The moratorium granted to Germany means that an additional $246,000,000 will have to be found. If business should fail to pick up, more corporations will reduce salaries and wages, and the revenue from income and corporation taxes will show a further decline. It is this situation which accounts for the circular letter sent by the President to the several departments instructing them to limit their expenditures to the strictest essentials and their budget estimates likewise.

IN OUR JUDGMENT, it would be most unwise for the Administration to advocate any cut in the personnel of the Services. Nothing of the kind is being done abroad. France and Italy continue to build, Great Britain has said she can reduce no more unless other nations cut, and even Germany, relieved from debt payments, has given no promise to curtail her shipbuilding program. Secretary Stimson has found that his disarmament proposals have fallen on barren ground. In short, it may be expected, in spite of the coming Geneva Disarmament Conference, that Europe will continue to be an armed camp. At home, we regret to say that conditions this Winter may require the presence of adequate forces to assure the preservation of order. Undoubtedly the authorities of the departments may find certain economies possible, and if so, they will be put into effect. But at least let us have no reduction in personnel.

THE WASHINGTON EVENING STAR placed in juxtaposition in its columns on last Tuesday an attack on national defense made by Dr. Edward Alsworth Ross, Professor of Sociology at the University of Wisconsin, and a defense of this necessity made by James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, who has been returned to the United States Senate. Here is what Dr. Ross said:

"If all the Armies and Fleets are for defense, against whom are we arming?" Senator Lewis said:

"Our nation, with envy leveled against it, with hatred and vengeance sworn against it by the surrounding nations of the world will only be preserved from destruction by our Navy, whose instrumentalities will measure the needs sufficient to assure protection of the Republic and its citizens and to repel any advance of opposition."

If Professors, such as Dr. Ross, would study the world situation as Senator Lewis has done, there would be fewer disarmament enthusiasts and a greater realization of the need of the country for an adequate Fleet.

SECRETARY HURLEY, accompanied by Mrs. Hurley, will leave Seattle next week for the Philippines. He will stay in the islands only a few days, but as he will use an aeroplane, he will have an opportunity to inspect all the important posts and contact their troops and prominent natives. It is expected that in Manila the Secretary will make an announcement of the policy of the Administration with respect to the future of the Archipelago. Washington is deeply concerned over the utterances of Senator Hawes, of Missouri, and the riot which occurred, especially the invasion of the premises of the Army and Navy Club and the injuries which resulted. Apparently, the Filipinos have accepted Mr. Hawes' views as those of a responsible American, when as a matter of fact the Missouri Senator is merely a junior Democratic member of the Senate Insular Committee. The practice of members of Congress junketing to our foreign possessions or to Europe and Asia and making speeches for political profit, has become exceedingly embarrassing to the President and his advisers, and it would not be surprising should efforts be made to limit such trips to those who have the money to pay their own expenses.

MAJ. GEN. SMEDLEY D. BUTLER has announced he will apply for retirement from the Marine Corps next October. Reports have been persistent that he would announce his candidacy for the Senate to succeed Senator Davis, the present incumbent. It is the understanding of Pennsylvania politicians that Governor Pinchot will back the Butler candidacy while the Mellon organization will put its strength behind Mr. Davis or the chairman of the Tariff Commission, Mr. Fletcher. Should General Butler go to the Senate, the Keystone State will be represented in Congress by two retired Marines, Representative Coyle being the other. Mr. Coyle is a member of the House Naval Committee, and his cool, wise judgment has made him a valuable member.

W. B. H.—Inasmuch as a pension is a personal right, the estate of a beneficiary of a pension is not entitled to receive accrued pension after his death. We are informed by the Pension Office that if the beneficiary of the pension leaves a widow she may make claim for the pension, however, and it will be paid to her. Further, if the pensioner died without sufficient funds to care for the doctor's expenses and funeral expenses incident to his death, the accrued pension may be used to pay for these expenses. If there is no widow and the estate of the pensioner has sufficient funds to cover the aforementioned expenses, the pension check which was due on the third of the month must be returned to the Government if the pensioner died before this date.

W. W. D.—Inasmuch as no examinations for appointment as second lieutenant in the Regular Army are scheduled at the present time, nor are any such contemplated within the next few years, there is nothing we can furnish you as to what the Academy requirements for appointment would be, should appointments be resumed. Generally, however, it might be said that the examination will cover all of the subjects taken by a cadet at West Point.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Original Appointments in Regular Army.—With the exception of the appointment of one flying cadet as second lieutenant in the Air Corps during the last year, there were no original appointments in the Regular Army upon the promotion list except from the graduating classes of the Military Academy. After the appointment of the Military Academy Class each year to the grade of second lieutenant there have remained no vacancies which might be filled from the ranks, from civil life or from honor graduates of military colleges. However, vacancies upon the non-promotion list are being filled from time to time.

Special Orders, War Department, have announced the appointment of 17 Medical Corps Reserve officers, on active duty as first lieutenants, Medical Corps, Regular Army. In addition to these appointments, the following vacancies which existed on July 1, 1931, and for which there were qualified candidates on that date, have been filled: Veterinary Corps 1, Medical Administrative Corps 3, and Chaplains 3. There still remains one vacancy rank in the Dental Corps which will be filled at once. Further original vacancies upon the non-promotion list will be filled from time to time.

The first lieutenants of the Reserve Corps who this week received appointments in the Medical Corps, Regular Army, are Frederick Ballard Westervelt, Alonzo Ray Dawson, Otis Otto Benson, Ernest Holden Parsons, Kenneth Arthur Brewer, Norman Wilhelm Anderson, Lewis Barbato, Paul Strimple Fancher, Vinnie Hale Jeffress, Kenneth Frederick Ernst, Theodore Longworth Finley, Kermit Hoyt Gates, Charles Lee Kirkpatrick, Loyal Giffis, Lester Ernest Judd, Joseph Hamilton McNinch and William Jeffers Kennard.

Three appointments also were made this week in the Chaplains Corps, Regular Army. The appointees, all of whom become first lieutenants and who were appointed from the Reserves, are Chaplains Peter Christian Schroder, John Henry, August Borleis, and Hudson Bissell Phillips.

The three vacancies in the Medical Administrative Corps were filled by the appointment of the following enlisted men of the Medical Department as second lieutenants to rank from July 21: Sgt. Ralph Beveridge Robinson, Ft. Jay, N. Y.; Sgt. Paul Christian Borup, Ft. Hayes, Ohio, and Sgt. Philip Wright Hocker-smith, William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Tex. The last named will be transferred to Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, for duty.

2nd Lt. George Townley Price, Vet.-Res., was appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army this week to fill a vacancy in the Veterinary corps.

Economy Problems.—Following receipt of the letter from President Hoover, published in the Army and Navy Journal last week, warning government agencies to curtail expenditures and eliminate or postpone those which are not immediately necessary, budget committees have been busy in both the Army and Navy scanning their current expenses and studying the next budget.

Shaving all along the line is being studied by the Army, but unless the entire structure of our modest defense plans is to be altered there can be no major changes. Alteration of our defense structure would be a major task in itself and one that would take considerable time and study both in the Department and in Congress.

In the Navy and Marine Corps, it is feared that drastic economy measures may be aimed particularly at their organizations. The Marine Corps, many fear, will be urged to cut even further into its personnel than has been forecast. The Navy will feel pressure upon its personnel, too, and exceptional pressure on any building program that may be brought up.

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Place your finger on your Adam's Apple. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords.

From the report of a famous scientist who studied the effects of LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—

"During the course of some recent investigations... we became interested to ascertain whether Ultra Violet Rays produced any change in the quality of the cigarettes. It may interest you to know that I was able to detect a very definite difference in the irritant qualities of the treated and untreated cigarettes. Several tests were made, not only on myself, but others as well, and we experienced little difficulty in selecting the treated or irradiated cigarettes as distinctly less irritating to the mucous membrane of the nose and pharynx than the control or untreated cigarettes."

Pep Up Maneuvers With "Wet-Dry" Issue.—A new system of "pepping up" field maneuvers for the National Guard has been resorted to by National Guardsmen of Maryland and Pennsylvania encamped at Tobyhanna, Pa. In place of the prosaic blue and red forces these guardsmen have divided themselves in the Wet and Dry forces. The problem is said to be that of an army of dry rebels from the West striving to crush its way through a wet army of the East in an attempt to dry up the Atlantic seaboard.

Naturally, the War Department, when shown dispatches "from the front" disclaimed any parentship of the novel idea. It was stated that this particular plan of brightening an ordinary tactical problem had not originated at the Department.

A dispatch from Tobyhanna printed in the Baltimore Sun of July 28, describes the situation as follows: "The One Hundred and Tenth Field Artillery tonight camped at South Sterling after a day of marching toward the scene of its first encounter tomorrow with the dry army which has captured Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia and is about to attack New York."

"The unit moves into battery positions tomorrow and will fire on supposed machine gun nests and artillery positions of the dry army planning a flank attack on New York from the northwest."

"The maneuver assumes the dries have mobilized in the West, starting in Kansas and marching East. They are shooting as traitors all persons found in possession of liquor, according to the terms of the problem, and the Maryland army is all that stands between them and conquest of the East."

"Departure from camp today for the scene of the battle was marked by the wrecking of an escort wagon, containing food for Battery D. A runaway horse caused the disaster and nineteen dozen eggs were smashed. The road discipline of the battalion today was rated as excellent and camp was pitched in record time."

General Holbrook Predicts War With Russia.—Russia was viewed as a likely foe in the next war by Brig. Gen. L. R. Holbrook, USA, commander of the First Division, according to press reports of his address July 25, before the veterans of the 78th, or "Lightning" Division at Camp Dix, N. J., at their reunion encampment. At the same time General Holbrook regarded Germany as a very likely ally.

"It is well to remember," said General Holbrook, "that the political power in control of Russia has declared war on the United States and is today openly advocating the overthrow of this Government in every place and at every opportunity. Russia evidently is preparing to fight the world. Preaching disarmament among other nations, she is today building great munition plants and creating the greatest war machine the world ever has known."

"We will face a new alignment in the next war. We will forget our foes of the World War and welcome them as allies. This is not an alarming theory. Foes of the recent conflict will work together against the common enemy for the preservation of our governments, our homes and firesides and our religion."

Maj. Gen. James H. McRae, USA, ret., former commander of the "Lightning" Division, viewed 3,000 veterans of his war-time command, march in a single line, a mile and a half long, across the old parade ground, to wring his hand. It was a spectacular demonstration of affection for the man who led them through the stubborn Hindenburg Line in 1918.

Sentence Including Both Reduction in Rating and a Fixed Loss of Pay.—The Bureau of Navigation notes that many naval officers, acting in their capacities as convening and reviewing authorities of summary courtsmartial and deck courts, fail to follow the instructions contained in Section 701, Naval Courts and Boards, when acting on sentences involving both reduction in rating and a fixed loss of pay.

If it is considered that the offense or offenses of which an enlisted man is found guilty are such as to justify both reduction in rating and a fixed loss of pay, full and complete reasons for approval of such sentences should be given. In practically all cases where this is not done, the Bureau makes recommendation to the Secretary of the Navy that either the loss of pay or the reduction in rating be remitted.

Field Artillery Texts in Preparation.—Field Artillery extension courses for Reserve officers have been completed and are now being distributed by The Adjutant General. There are ten new texts in all. Also there is a new ROTC Field Artillery Manual being prepared, largely to concentrate pertinent information and save the trouble of having so many different sources for information.

The final issuing of training regulations based on sound and flash ranging for Field Artillery personnel is under way. This will be the first time that such information has been gathered together in readily available form. The tentative outline of the subject has been reviewed in the office of the Chief of Field Artillery and has been sent to the Field Artillery Board for final polishing and finishing touches. It should be in the hands of the printer this winter.

Reports from combat organizations on automatic rifle firing against low flying aircraft reveal satisfactory results. The training recently of Field Artillery personnel has emphasized this factor. Emphasis has also been placed on firing at fast moving targets. The inexpensive fast moving targets, having speeds of from 35 to 40 miles per hour, are now being issued to Field Artillery organizations to facilitate practice in this important matter.

Reduction in Subsistence Charges on Army Transports.—The Secretary of War has directed a reduction in subsistence charges on Army transports to be made effective Aug. 1, 1931, as follows: First class messes from $1.50 to $1.00 per day, and second class messes from $1.20 to $.75 per day.

The Secretary further prescribes that children between 5 and 12 years of age be charged half rate and children under 5 years of age be subsisted free.

Rank for Navy Medical Officers on Recruiting Duty.—The Bureau of Navigation is contemplating the early promulgation of a policy which will require that a medical officer for recruiting duty be a lieutenant (MC), or above. The importance of this duty has long been recognized, for the influence on the future personnel of selection at the source is inestimable.

Change in Navy Shirts.—Blue chambray shirts have recently been the subject of extensive tests in the Navy with the view to improving their appearance and wearing qualities, and, as a result, the Secretary has approved certain changes in the Uniform Regulations covering this shirt.

The new type of shirts which will be issued as soon as the present stock is exhausted will be of coat style, V-shaped collar and made of material that has been "sanforized," i.e., pre-shrunk to the point where shrinkage will be practically nil on subsequent laundering. In the place of the black rubber button, an inexpensive flat aluminum button that will not break in laundering

"Enemy Spies."—The public was surprised this week to read in the daily press that the Navy Department is still on guard against "enemy spies." The articles quoted a sign posted in a corridor of the Navy Building in Washington which reads: "Beware of spies. Don't talk about what you have done or are going to do. The enemy has ears everywhere. Don't discuss naval affairs * * * with strangers or foreigners. Secrecy means safety."

The sign, it developed, is a relic of war days and is posted in the corridor the same as war recruiting posters, etc., are posted.

Many Fly to Atlantic City.—Many service pilots are finding it very convenient to drop in at Atlantic City for a week end in their planes. Notable among this group is Secretary of War Hurley, who frequently flies to Atlantic City to spend a week end with his family, which is located at Ventnor, N. J. Last Saturday may be taken as a typical day in this connection. Lt. M. L. Greer, USN, flew a Navy plane in from the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Secretary of War Hurley arrived in a Ford tri-motor transport, piloted by Lt. H. Curtland. An Army O-3-8 flew in from Logan, W. Va., with Lt. R. M. Rawlins, Md. NG, at the controls. Ens. John Baker flew a Navy V-2-C, of the National Aircraft Factory, Philadelphia, to Atlantic City. Two other Army planes and a Navy plane came in during the day.

Navy Guards Fire Control and Gas Plans.—The Navy Department has issued rigid rules directing the observation of utmost secrecy in regard to important new inventions and improvements in naval fire control and gas warfare. So vital are these considered that the Navy Department has called for strict vigilance in guarding the secrets from foreign inspection. In a few instances the restrictions may be waived by the Chief of Naval Ordnance.

The order directs that commanding officers of the Navy shall see that "utmost secrecy" is observed in connection with all fire-control and gas warfare material in so far as persons not connected with the service are concerned. It continues:

1. Blueprints, textbooks or descriptive matter relating to fire control be not shown, loaned or quoted to persons not connected with the naval service.
2. System used for training the personnel in fire control and spotting or the system used during practice or in battle be not explained to persons not connected with the naval service.
3. Instruments used in connection with fire control be not explained loaned, demonstrated or stripped for copying for the benefit of any person or persons outside the naval service.

4. Filters, air circulating and purifying devices, gas mask stowage, gas defense apparatus and any gear or device used in connection with the removal or neutralization of agents employed in chemical warfare be not explained, loaned or demonstrated to or for the benefit of persons outside the naval service.

A footnote explains that the order also controls American companies holding or executing contracts for the manufacture of fire-control material. The discretionary power of the Chief of Ordnance applies principally to the manufacturers.

Shell-Shock Non-Existent.—Bearing out previous conclusions, the Sixth International Congress of Military Medicine and Pharmacy, recently concluded at The Hague, came to the conclusion that there was no such thing as "shell-shock," and that the term was misapplied. Lt. Col. Francis E. Fronczak, health commissioner of Buffalo, N. Y., who was a delegate to the Congress this year, was reported in the press as saying that the meeting this year had been one of the most interesting and fruitful since the group was organized six years ago.

One of the chief questions before the medical body this year was the deliberation and subsequent recommendations on "shell-shock," the mental and nervous result of emotional reactions under stress. The conclusion reached was that there was no such thing as the popular conception of "shell-shock." The condition giving rise to the name is termed the aggravation of a neurotic condition which obtained before the sufferer entered the war. The Congress in its findings said, "The role played by emotional shock is of particular importance in the genesis of psycho-neurosis, leading during the war to post-emotional syndromes. But the war has not created psychoses of a new kind, of an evolution hitherto unknown. No new morbid entity has been observed. The terms 'shell-shock' and 'post concussion syndrome' have been wrongly applied at times. It is advisable to cease the use of such terms or to limit their application to cases strictly controlled."

In connection with criminal cases attributable to so-called shell-shock, the Congress recommended that the penal responsibility of the patients should be determined by a psychiatrist.

The Office of the Surgeon General has said the fact that shell-shock was non-existent, has been recognized for some time. In all cases where the condition which has been termed as "shell-shock" obtains, the patient was afflicted by some form of neurosis prior to war experience. The continual sound of firing, bad living conditions and general stress and strain of war time result in the condition known as "shell-shock." Actually, war has not been responsible for the arising of any new nervous disease, as the popular conception of "shell-shock" indicates. In other words, war was responsible for the aggravation of an already existent condition and not the creation of it.

An elaborate system of control of psycho-neurotic has been recommended by the Congress for war time. This system would revolve around a neuropsychiatric center for each army, organized as a main clearing station for sorting out patients into three categories and treating those curable.

About this center would be sub-stations where patients would receive preliminary treatment and dispatched to hospitals and asylums. The three categories proposed were the serious cases of psychopathy needing asylum treatment, cases suffering from acute transitory disorders and patients exhibiting curable psychoneuroses, but requiring prolonged treatment.

"There is reason, therefore," the report said, "in times of peace to provide for the selection of cases of mental disorder by a medical board composed of competent psychiatrists and their special employment in war time enabling them to render useful service."

Nicaraguan Canal Would Multiply Security Factor by Four.—The construction of a canal across Nicaragua would multiply the security factor of the United States by four in case an enemy chose to make destruction of the canals an act of war, according to Lt. Col. Dan I. Sultan, CE, who has just returned from a two-year survey of a possible canal route across Nicaragua. As a defense measure the Nicaragua Canal would be very desirable in the opinion of Colonel Sultan.

Colonel Sultan was sent to Nicaragua with a force of 275 engineers and men in 1929, following the organization of the Inter-ocean Canal Board. His report, now being prepared, will be submitted to Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, the Chief of Engineers, who will transmit it to the board. It will then go to the Secretary of War and finally to the President for submission to Congress in December.

Actual construction would take about ten years, in addition to the time necessary to negotiate treaties and obtain necessary legislation. Two treaties would have to be drawn, a new one with Nicaragua and one with Costa Rica. Along whose border runs the San Juan River, the bed of which would be part of the canal's route.

The route Colonel Sultan surveyed is 173 miles in length, as compared with the 50-mile route of the Panama Canal, and involves a lift of 105 feet. The Panama Canal has a lift of 85 feet. Actual construction distance would only be 103 miles, however, as 70 miles of the course lies through Lake Managua.

The Nicaragua Canal would save about two days sailing between the East and West Coasts of the United States, as 300 miles would be eliminated from the eastern seaboard and 650 miles from the Pacific route, where ships must detour far out to sea to avoid a jutting shoulder of land.

There are no great obstacles to the building of the Nicaragua Canal. The physical part of the construction is considered to be easier than that at Panama, as there would be no danger from landslides. The Nicaraguan earthquake last Spring did not touch the canal site. The cost estimate is reported to be about $750,000,000.

Conditions in Colon.—Charges by Nelson Rounsvell, Panama newspaper editor, that saloons and vice flourish in Colon, were the subject of comment in Washington this week. Mr. Rounsvell attended a press conference with Secretary Hurley, July 27, in the course of which the Secretary asked him if he knew of any immoral or illegal uses of property in the Canal Zone, to which the editor replied "I do not know of one case."

The Secretary pointed out that Colon is not under the jurisdiction of the United States, as it is not a part of the Panama Canal Zone, but stands on property owned almost entirely by the Panama Railroad which, under an old treaty, will revert to the United States in 1966. Mr. Rounsvell advocates sale of this land by the United States, or of its equity, to the citizens of Colon, asserting that by this method only could the United States be freed of criticism in Panama. The Secretary said at the press conference that this is a matter for the State Department to decide, adding that the possibility of selling the Colon property has been under consideration by that department since 1917.

General Butler to Retire and Answer Critics.—Rumors of the retirement of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, USMC, which have been current since his involvement in the now famous "Mussolini incident," have come to a head with his own announcement that he would retire Oct. 1. No official information concerning General Butler's retirement has been received in the office of the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps.

The announcement was made before a gathering of members of the Marine Corps Veterans' Legion at Quantico, early in the week, in a speech accepting a bronze tablet from the Legion. General Butler has been quoted in the press as saying that he would "tell some of these people who abuse our corps where the hell to get off."

No official request for retirement has been filed at the Office of the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps. It is expected that a request for retirement would be based on the fact that General Butler has had more than 30 years' service.

In presenting the plaque, Col. Frederick M. Wise, USMC, ret., is reported to have said that the Army had banished its Mitchell and the Navy its Magruder, but nobody can keep Butler from talking.

It is understood that General Butler has bought a house in Philadelphia and that it is now being furnished. It is believed that he intends to reside there after he finishes a lecture tour, for which he said he had a contract. There are also rumors that General Butler will enter himself as a candidate for the Senate from Pennsylvania, although nothing specific has been learned.

Relief Plan May Utilize Army.—A considerably discussed rumor about Washington is that President Hoover is contemplating employing the Army in a relief program for dealing with next winter's expected unemployment distress.

There seems to be general agreement among authorities that the next winter's distress will be more acute than that of last. Savings and reserves of wage earners have been exhausted, it is pointed out, and a report recently made to the President's Unemployment Commission stated that the relief funds of municipalities and States were at a low level.

Having opposed the appropriation of relief funds, and being strongly opposed to the dole system, the President would hardly be likely to allow the War Department to administer any such fund. It is thought that he may have in mind the supplying of food, medical supplies, fuel, shelter and clothing by the Army.

It may be that the President has in mind letting the Army set up regular tented or cantonment cities, over which it would have entire jurisdiction and in which the occupants could be kept at some kind of work.

It has been pointed out that the Army has functioned efficiently in the past in times of disaster, such as earthquakes, fires, and other calamities. In view of this it may be that the President would not hesitate to call on the Army for assistance in the matter of relief work.

SERVICE SPORT NEWS

WINS POLO TOURNAMENT

Ft. Robinson, Neb.—With every player turning in a dashing performance for the entire six periods, Ft. Robinson Sunday, July 5, triumphed decisively over the Pierre, S. D., polo team by a score of 10 to 1, the final goal bringing their total high enough to register a win over Ft. Meade, S. D., for championship of the six-day tournament.

The first and main upset of Sunday's matches was the defeat of Ft. Meade, which swept through the early rounds undefeated, by Hot Springs. The Springs players literally went wild, taking an early lead and holding it by hard riding and long, well placed shots. Hot Springs won 7 to 5 with a handicap credit of 2 goals, but the showing was very creditable in view of the fact that the dopesters had Meade scheduled for an easy victory.

The final tally for the week shows the following results:

	W	L	GE	GA
Ft. Robinson	3	1	23	10
Ft. Meade	3	1	22	12
Hot Springs	2	2	14	19
Pierre	1	3	19	25
Sturgis	1	3	12	24

Play throughout the tournament was round robin, the schedule having been made out at the first of the week so that each team played each other team. In case of a tie in games won and lost, the contest was to be decided on a basis of goals earned, goals allowed to be the final factor in case of a second tie.

Thus Ft. Robinson, playing against a Pierre team which had been augmented for the final game, netted the tenth goal to win. This courier was made in the last chukker by Lt. R. A. Ellsworth, who is lost to Ft. Robinson through his transfer to Ft. Sill, Okla.

At the close of the tournament it was announced that the Ft. Robinson Club will receive the Butler trophy, in former years presented to the winner of the Black Hills district tournament at Ft. Meade. It is understood that this cup, furnished by the well known horse breeder and backer of the Hot Springs polo teams, Mr. Butler, will be given to the winner of the tournament here each year.

In addition members of the team received individual silver goblets presented respectively by the Midwest Hardware Company, Adams Hardware Company, Harcourt Clothing Company, Crawford Creamery Company, and Nash-Finch Company. Ft. Meade, runners-up, received the five Crawford Chamber of Commerce cups.

IN THE SADDLE

Ft. Robinson—Coming from behind in the final period of a four-chukker game, the polo team of the 341st Field Artillery defeated the Ft. Robinson team on the local field, today, by the score, 4 to 3. The first blood was drawn when the ball was smacked through the Ft. Robinson goal in the initial chukker, but the local team quickly reversed the contest and maintained the lead until the 341st team rallied and pushed over three counters in the fourth chukker.

The game, an annual contest between the two organizations puts the contestants on an even basis, each team having won one game. About fifty witnessed the contest.

Ft. Robinson, Neb.—Mrs. Royal L. Gervais, high point winner in last year's show, again took individual honors with firsts in the ladies' jumping, ladies' saddle and championship jumping classes, and second in the ladies' jumping and pair events, at the Ft. Robinson horsemanship, July 3 and 4. Most of her victories were on her well trained jumper, Stonewall Jackson, the others being with Eddie Cantor.

Officers of the Robinson Remount depot took first place in all three of the officers' charger classes, Capt. H. G. Paullin winning the open and championship events and Maj. S. M. Williams the novice charger division. Remount officers won three other places in the charger events. Captain Paullin rode Naughty Girl in these classes as he did to win second in novelty jumping.

Visitors from Ft. Meade made a good showing in a number of events.

Two enlisted men, Sergeants Hayes and Daugherty of the 4th Cavalry, figured in many of the jumping events, winning pair jumping. Sergeant Hayes also won first in enlisted men's jumping and third in open jumping. Sergeant Daugherty was third in enlisted men's jumping and first in novice jumping.

Capt. and Mrs. J. H. Healy placed in a number of events, the former taking second in two polo pony classes. Mrs. Healy was third in light weight polo pony and second in ladies' saddle class.

The most noticeable feature of this year's show was the extensive competition in practically every class, in contrast to the limited number of entries last year. Some very creditable performances were turned in, many of the animals and riders showing talent worthy of the largest and best established shows of the country.

Rations for Traveling Men

THE SECRETARY OF WAR has directed that hereafter when enlisted men are traveling by rail, where it is impracticable to furnish cooking facilities, that they be paid the $2.25 per diem ration allowance, instead of cooked rations and coffee money.

15TH INFANTRY WINS

Tientsin, China—The Doughboy ball tossers played errorless ball and hit hard to defeat the civilian team June 20, by a score of 8-2. Not one of the Infantrymen failed to connect for a least one base hit, while Crowder, Corbin, Hull and Thompson each garnered two. Peterson pitched the entire game, allowing only seven hits all told.

Seriously wounded in the leg early in the engagement, he continued to direct the operations not only of his platoon but of another. He charged and drove off the crew of an enemy machine gun, supervised the disposition and digging in of a large part of his company and yielded command only when exhausted from pain and loss of blood."

On July 20, 1931, the military medical profession suffered a telling stroke in the death of Col. Harry H. Snively, commanding the 112th Medical Regiment, with headquarters at Columbus, Ohio.

After graduating from the Ohio State University, Colonel Snively studied medicine, graduating from the Ohio Medical College in 1902. Later he became affiliated with that institution as an instructor and as Assistant Professor of Obstetrics. He was a conservative, scientific medical man and a recognized authority within his profession.

Colonel Snively became affiliated with the Medical Department of the Ohio National Guard in the early years of his medical career; originally as a first lieutenant, gradually rising to the grade of colonel in 1912, which grade was held at the time of his death. He organized and commanded the 112th Medical Regiment, which is considered one of the most efficient in the National Defense.

At the outbreak of the World War, Colonel Snively went to Russia as head of the American Red Cross, and served there and in Persia for several months. When in Russia, because of his efficient work, he gained the rank of Brigadier General of the Russian Army.

Realizing that his own country might be drawn into the great conflict and wanting to take an active part, he returned to the United States just in

Ft. Benning Notes

Ft. Benning, Ga.—The annual camp at Ft. Benning attended by 182 officers of the Engineer and Chemical Warfare Reserve will be brought to a close tomorrow, ending two weeks of instruction which was featured by a number of interesting demonstrations of the latest things in equipment and technique. The camp has been in command of Maj. Leon F. Lyon, Engineer officer of the 4th Corps Area.

One of the most interesting of the demonstrations staged, and which attracted a number of spectators from nearby towns, was by Company C, 1st Chemical Regiment, of the use and capabilities of the latest equipment for that branch.

After four years' service at Ft. Benning as Post Exchange Officer, Maj. Sam I. McCants, Inf., will take leave tomorrow preparatory to departing for duty in the Hawaiian Islands. Under Major McCants' management, the exchange at this post has grown until it now includes about 26 distinct departments.

Members of the Columbus Camp, United Confederate Veterans, have been invited by Co. F, 29th Inf., commanded by Capt. John R. Horan, to be guests of the Regular Army company at a dinner in the company mess hall in the near future. The invitation was extended largely in order that the old veterans might have an opportunity to observe the operation of the new cafeteria style of meal service, being tried out in Co. F, under the direction and supervision of the Department of Experiment of the Infantry School. Members of that department and of the Infantry Board also have been invited to attend the dinner and observe the operation of the new plan.

The Second Battalion, First Tank Regiment (Light) will depart tomorrow on its annual hike, taking a round trip of about 800 miles to Pensacola, Fla. Maj. Allen F. Kingman, commanding officer of the battalion, will lead the march. It is planned to spend five days in the vicinity of Pensacola.

Ft. Benning's newly constructed 18-hole golf course, upon which work has been going on for the past two years, probably will be opened for play, at least in part, during the next two weeks, according to an announcement by Lt. Col. H. A. Wells, golf director of the Officers' Club. It is probable that five holes of the old course will be utilized, initially, in connection with thirteen holes of the new course, in order that the course may begin and end in the vicinity of the present golf shop and locker rooms. In the event this is decided upon, use of the full 18 holes of the new course probably will be delayed until completion of the new golf clubhouse on the hill near block 18, where the new course begins and ends.

Prizes were won by Mrs. G. E. Brower, Mrs. R. C. Blessley and Mrs. Harry Miller. Mrs. E. C. Brower, of New York, is the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. G. E. Brower.

Control of Reserves

organized into three component parts:

- "1. The Regular Army.
- "2. National Guard.
- "3. The Organized Reserves.

"The first of these, the Regular Army, has both a war time and peace time function. It is constantly on active duty status. Its individual members are subject at all times to the Articles of War and subject to orders and instructions of superior officers. The members of the Regular Army, upon taking the oath of enlistment or the oath upon accepting a warrant or commission, surrender certain attributes and prerogatives held and enjoyed by civilians under the Constitution. In return they are clothed with certain powers and prerogatives not held by civilians.

"The second, the National Guard, has both war time and peace time functions. Its members are not constantly on active duty status, but may be called at any time by the State authorities to active duty within the borders of the State, and under certain conditions may be called to active duty without the State on purely national matters. Its members are required to do certain military duties. When not actually in performance of military duties the members of the National Guard are on a purely civilian status. At no time when not called into Federal service are its members subject to direct supervision of the War Department. All contact with the National Guard must be through the State authorities.

"The third, the Organized Reserves, has a war time function only, as stated in the National Defense Act, and functions in the event of a national emergency. Nothing but a declaration of national emergency can subject a member of the Organized Reserves to military control against his will. No member of the Organized Reserves regardless of rank, when on inactive duty status, can exercise any military control over any other member under any circumstances whatsoever. The rank conferred in the Organized Reserves does not carry with it any right of command. Such right can be exercised only after a call in the event of a national emergency or by a member who has voluntarily consented to enter upon active duty at a time other than that of a national emergency. A member of the Reserves voluntarily on active duty status can exercise no control over another member not on active duty, no matter what rank or assignment he may have.

"The War Department has long since given up any thought of exercising direct control over individuals in the National Guard. There is, however, an unmistakable trend toward exercising direct control by the Regular Army establishment over individuals in the Organized Reserves. From happenings here and there it seems quite clear that it is the desire of the Regular Army to place the members of the Organized Reserves on a permanent military status at all times. Right there is the cleavage. If a member of the Organized Reserves is constantly in the military service, he has had taken away from him his constitutional right of free speech, free assembly and freedom of movement. That is the first step in the history of our country in compulsory military training. The mark of cleavage made is as slight as if made by a slender silk thread, but it can be distinctly seen.

"Already, a reserve officer has been threatened with the loss of his commission because he has written adversely of the policy of the War Department, a threat of the denial of free speech on the part of a civilian.

"Already, a reserve officer has been called upon to account officially for his absence from an assembly called by his unit commander.

"Already, a reserve officer not on active duty status, has been ordered to attend an assembly of his unit or procure in advance an excuse from his commander.

"Already, a reserve officer has been investigated for his activities and his suggestions as a civilian.

Stoddert Radio Controlled

CONSIDERABLE success is reported to have attended the trials of the radio-controlled USS Stoddert, which maneuvered crewless and at full speed last week off San Clemente Island. The use of radio controlled vessels is not new, but the Stoddert was said to have been particularly successful in performing evolutions with precision. Speed was increased or slackened, whistles were blown, searchlights turned on and off, and the crewless destroyer executed full 180 degree turns.

The Stoddert is one of the recently decommissioned destroyers. All of her armament has been removed and hat-like coverings placed over her funnels to keep out missiles dropped from airplanes.

New MC Admiral

CAPT. CHARLES P. KINDLEBERGER, MC, USN, a member of the board of medical examiners, Navy Department, becomes a rear admiral today, Aug. 1, filling the vacancy created by the retirement of Rear Adm. Edward R. Stitt, MC, USN, who reaches the statutory age of 64 years.

Transfer to Naval Reserve

THE Secretary of the Navy has approved an opinion rendered by the Judge Advocate General relative to the question of eligibility for transfer to the Naval Reserve. A summary of the conclusions reached in the opinion follows:

(1) A citizen of the Philippine Islands who did not on July 1, 1925, have 8 years' naval service to his credit may not transfer to the Naval Reserve after 16 or 20 years' naval service.

(2) An alien who on July 1, 1925, did not have 8 years' naval service to his credit, would become eligible for transfer to the Fleet Naval Reserve on the completion of 16 or 20 years' naval service, provided he had become a naturalized citizen of the United States prior to application for such transfer.

(3) A citizen of the Philippine Islands who first enlisted in the Navy subsequent to July 1, 1925, would not be eligible for transfer to Class F-5 of the Naval Reserve after completion of twenty years' naval service.

One-Wheel Landing

FIRST LT. HAYNE D. BOYDEN, USMC, made a landing at the Naval Air Station, Anacostia, D. C., about 1:30 p. m., July 30, with only one wheel on his landing gear.

Lieutenant Boyden took off from Anacostia in a transport plane with four enlisted Marine Corps passengers for Quantico. When the plane was in the air, one of the passengers called the pilot's attention to the damaged landing gear. Lieutenant Boyden returned to Anacostia almost immediately and made a landing on the remaining wheel, bringing the plane to a stop without damage to the plane or injury to personnel.

Sound Test Film

THE Bureau of Navigation has purchased fifty (50) single reels of motion picture sound test film from R. C. A. Photophone, Inc., to be used for the purpose of checking and adjusting sound motion picture installations. This film was purchased not only for the purpose of making adjustments during installation, but also in order to have available at the above-named activities for periodic checks and adjustments as long as the physical life of the film will permit. Care in its use, handling, and storage is, therefore, of paramount importance.

dress to a convention of Reserve Officers and to an assembly of unit commanders called by him at such convention, has advised Reserve Officers to oppose any pending legislation in the Congress of the United States affecting the Reserve Corps; that he expects all reserve officers to think as he thinks. That at two conventions of Reserve Officers he advised and urged the organization of an association of combat unit commanders with whom he could deal in all matters affecting the Reserves, because the present Reserve Association represented but one-fifth of the reserve officers in his Corps.

"These are only a few incidents which have come under my personal observation.

"If a reserve officer can be ordered to attend a unit assembly, he can be ordered out of town, ordered to active duty or ordered to shut his mouth.

"Shall we retain our independence as civilians, or shall we submit to military control at all times?"

General Gulick Visits

ON July 29, the Chief of Coast Artillery, Maj. Gen. John W. Gulick, visited the 213th Coast Artillery (Pa. NG), now in camp at Mount Gretna, Pa.

NG, commands the 28th Division, while Col. C. J. Smith, of Allentown, Pa., commands the 213th Coast Artillery.

The future use of aviation in warfare, the department says, is appreciated to the fullest extent by the War Department. It has directed that defense against hostile air forces be made a special study during the field exercises of all units of the Army of the United States. Maj. C. B. Meyer, CAC, the Regular Army instructor of the 213th Coast Artillery (Antiaircraft), has prepared several antiaircraft problems which will be solved during the maneuvers which will be conducted by the 28th Division in conjunction with the divisional aviation squadron.

Ft. Barrancas Notes

Ft. Barrancas, Fla.—The training year at Ft. Barrancas is drawing to a close. The CMTC and ROTC camps, with the aid of good weather, completed their training with excellent results. Experience has taught that particular study of even the remotest details regarding the preparation for camps, shows up in the results obtained. Every possible contingency that could arise was thought of and every advantage stressed in an effort to put over military instruction in an understandable way. All of the old, and several new forms of recreation were afforded this year, thus maintaining a high morale throughout the camp.

The 264th Battalion, CA, Ga. NG, are again here this year at Ft. Pickens. Both Batteries A and B fired their first seacoast target practice with creditable results.

A detachment of 85 men from the 69th Coast Artillery at Ft. McClellan, Ala., is here for its training and target practices. They arrived in company with the latest anti-aircraft equipment, which will be of particular advantage to the members of the regular garrison, as well as for training a large group of reserve officers.

The 2nd Battalion, 1st Tank Regiment, will visit these harbor defenses in the first part of August. During their Summer hike they are to visit this post for five days and we will have an opportunity to observe our brothers of another branch in action.

Many improvements have taken place in the past few months—features that will appeal to those who have served in this harbor defense and those to come. Mr. R. S. Eaton, national representative of the American Red Cross, visited the post long enough to qualify three officers as life guards and examiners cooperating with Colonel Lincoln in an effort to establish the necessary safeguards at the new swimming beach. A course of instruction and tests for life guards among the enlisted men is now underway.

A determined effort is being made to rid the parade ground of the obnoxious sand spur; ample parking facilities have been provided at Barrancas Dock; the ball diamond has been clayed, and the post has an excellent baseball team that is making a name for itself in the Twilight League in Pensacola. The main gate has been moved to the car station; wooded area adjacent to the rifle range has been cleared, and additional facilities have been provided for those post guests who are here for a day or so each Summer.

Marine Reserves Train

A PROVISIONAL Regiment of Marine Corps Reserves, numbering 31 officers and 333 enlisted men, under the command of Maj. Chester L. Fordney, U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, will be encamped at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., for a period of two weeks' training from July 28 to Aug. 8. During this period, an intensive course of instruction will be given in combat training.

The units comprising the Provisional Regiment are the 1st Battalion of the 24th Marines, 456th Company of the 2nd Battalion of the 24th Marines, and the 2nd Provisional Battalion, composed of the 306th Company of Detroit, Mich., 311th Company of Toledo, Ohio, and the 315th Company of Milwaukee, Wisc. The plan of having units of the Marine Corps Reserve in the Middle West undergo training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station was inaugurated last year and proved so successful that it bids fair to be a permanent one.

Great Lakes is said to be a very convenient location for such training, it is well equipped to furnish it, and substantial savings may be made in transportation costs over the outlay involved in sending these units to the Marine Base at Quantico, Va.

Praise Sergeant Matthews

STAFF SGT. T. H. MATTHEWS, 5th FA, has been paid a tribute by the Fayetteville, N. C., Observer, for his work at Ft. Bragg in connection with equipping the CMTC students there.

Sergeant Matthews is assistant to Lt. W. N. White, supply officer of the CMT encampment. The latter stated, according to the Observer, that Sergeant Matthews had the best organized supply system that he had ever encountered in the Army. Everything was handled in a business-like manner with little or no confusion. At the rate of 90 candidates an hour, the students were measured for and outfitted with uniforms on the opening day of the camp, and Sergeant Matthews had the proper size on hand for each and every candidate.

From New York, she will proceed across the Atlantic to Boulogne, Southampton, Bremen, Casablanca and Dakar, then to Santos and Buenos Aires, arriving at the Argentine capital Nov. 24, after a nine months' cruise.

Historic as a training ship, the Presidente Sarmiento has been in service in the Argentine Navy since 1898. During her training cruises, the ship has cruised over 900,000 miles and enjoys a popular prestige among the Argentine officers and enlisted personnel, a large number of whom have cruised in her.

The Presidente Sarmiento is a steam frigate of 2,700 tons, 308 feet overall, 42 feet 7 inches beam, and 19 feet draft. She has a steel, clipper hull, with three masts. USMA Aviation Day

West Point, N. Y.—Aviation Day at the U. S. Military Academy here will be celebrated next Tuesday, Aug. 4, when America's foremost aviators visit West Point, inspect the various facilities of the post and then receive a special review of the Corps of Cadets, according to Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent.

Among the aviators who will be present, General Smith stated, are Maj. Frank M. Hawks, who holds innumerable speed records, both here and abroad; Maj. "Jimmy" Doolittle, one of the best known pilots in the country; Lt. Bernt Balchen, who piloted Admiral Byrd's plane over both the North and South Poles; Col. Clarence D. Chamberlain, who flew from New York to Berlin; Roger Q. Williams, pilot of the first plane to fly from New York to Rome; Lt. Col. George A. Vaughn, second highest American Ace; Maj. Gil Ervin, former outstanding Army pilot, an dthe veteran flyer, "Casey" Jones. Col. Peter J. Brady, chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Aviation, will also be present. Several other flyers who have materially contributed to the making of aviation history are also expected. Colonel Lindbergh's trip to the Far East will prevent his accompanying the party, and Col. Edward Rickenbacker was unable to be in New York on the date of the visit.

Plans to materially increase the amount of instruction given to cadets in aviation will be discussed and the site of the new airport to be constructed just south of the present reservation will be inspected. Lack of a landing field will prevent the party from flying to West Point and the trip will be made on Mr. William Todd's yacht Salemo.

"Naval Censorship"

(From the Leader-Republican, Gloversville, N. Y.)

THE "secrecy order" which was recently issued in the Navy Department has an unpleasant sound. The Navy, in common with other government departments, depends on public support. A sure way to lessen that support is to decline to tell the public what the Navy is doing. Former President Coolidge once remarked that all public business ought to be publicly conducted. According to the dispatches the "secrecy order" was promulgated because word had leaked out of the proposed reductions in the personnel of the Marine Corps. The Navy has the right and duty to keep its purely technical matters secret, but the increase or the decrease of the defense establishment is something which concerns the people directly. It would be a pretty state of affairs if the Navy or the Marine Corps were reduced and the people knew nothing of it. We can think of no recent news about the Navy which has either injured or embarrassed it. The attitude of most newspapers is sufficiently friendly. One cannot help wondering why censorship has been imposed.

Fly Polo Visitors

Chicago, Ill.—The famous Argentine polo team, which had been playing a series of games in Chicago, was flown to Detroit on Monday, July 21, by a transport plane of the 1st Pursuit Group. All members of the team expressed themselves as delighted with the ride, and that it was much smoother traveling than the top deck of a polo pony.

time to go with his own organization to the Mexican Border. After our country entered the war, Colonel Snively was assigned to the 37th Division as Director of Field Hospitals, retaining that position until the signing of the Armistice.

After the Armistice, he became closely affiliated with me in Chemical Warfare matters and later with the task of cleaning up the American Army prior to its return to the United States. The large delousing plant at Bordeaux under his command became the most efficient of any in France. Because of the excellence of his work there, he was recommended for the Distinguished Service Medal, his citation reading as follows:

"As Chief of the Delousing Plant of the American Expeditionary Forces at Bordeaux, by his superior administration and splendid efficiency, he contributed materially to the success achieved by the Army at that port in the return to the United States of the American Expeditionary Forces."

After completing this important duty, Colonel Snively volunteered to remain with me in connection with the organization of the American Typhus Relief Expedition in Poland. With these new duties, he was given the gigantic task of assembling and preparing for shipment to Poland over $10,000,000 worth of supplies purchased by that government from surplus supplies in France, and under his personal supervision, 45 trains, each consisting of 51 carloads of equipment and supplies, were successfully loaded and transported across Germany to Poland, a great achievement.

Because of his superior work in connection with the Expedition he received in addition to letters of commendation from the Republic of Poland, the War Cross for Valor and the Polish Red Cross Decoration. Returning to the United States after completing his work in Poland, he was State Health Director of Ohio, a position of trust, which he held for several years.

In recent years, Colonel Snively was engaged in the private practice of medicine and surgery in the city of Columbus, but never relaxed his great interest in the military profession, being a recognized authority on National Guard affairs. At the time of his death, he not only commanded the Medical Regiment which was so dear to him, but also held other important positions in the Guard.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Knowlton Snively, and one daughter, Marjorie.

Colonel Snively was always an optimist. It would be hard to imagine him doing an unkind, undignified or an intentionally wrong thing. He seldom missed the opportunity to do a kindness even to a stranger and would go a long way out of his course to help a friend. His great help and assistance to me during our twenty years of close association can never be forgotten. In his death, his family has lost a devoted husband and father, the Medical Profession an honorable fellow practitioner, the Military a patriotic and efficient officer whose memory will live a long time in the recollection of those who knew him, and I have lost a very dear friend.

(Signed) H. L. GILCHRIST,

Major General,

Chief of Chemical Warfare Service.

service, Mrs. Kendrick, mother of the bride, entertained at an informal reception at the Officers' Club at Ft. McPherson.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William J. Kendrick who, before her marriage, was Miss Mary Mell Neel.

At a beautiful ceremony at the home of Capt. Evans Crowell, Ft. Winfield Scott, Calif., Monday, July 6, Miss Charlotte Crichtlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Crichtlow of Nashville, Tenn., became the bride of Lt. Andrew Samuels, Jr., of Berkeley, Calif. Ch. George Rixey of the Presidio, officiated.

Lt. Paul D. Peery of Ft. Scott played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Col. Robert B. McBride, wore an embroidered chiffon voile gown of shell pink with a blue sash and picture hat and shoes of the same shade. Her bridal bouquet was Bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Crowell attended the bride as matron of honor and wore a blue chiffon gown with hat and shoes of blue and carried pink roses. Peggy Crowell, the little flower girl, wore a dainty lavender crepe dress and carried a basket of sweet peas.

Mr. Kenneth Courtright of Berkeley, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man.

Only relatives and intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, which was performed before an improvised altar of palms and ferns, lighted with cathedral candles.

Captain and Mrs. Crowell gave a reception at the Ft. Scott Officers' Club immediately after the wedding, at which a hundred guests were present.

The club was decorated with pink and blue hydrangea and ferns and lighted with ivory candles.

After a honeymoon in Yosemite Park, Lieutenant and Mrs. Samuels sailed for Honolulu and will make their home at Ft. Shafter, T. H.

Maj. Robert Whiting Daniels, OD, USA, and Jule Screven Willcox were married at noon on Saturday, July 18, at Flat Rock, N. C. The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Reverend Kirkman G. Major and Mrs. Daniels will be at home after Aug. 20, in Washington, D. C., where Major Daniels is stationed.

Invitations have been received in Norfolk to the marriage of Miss Eleanor Calvert King, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Ernest J. King, to Lt. Edward Blackburn Hampstead, USA, on Saturday night, Aug. 15, at 8 o'clock at All Saints Episcopal Church, Long Beach, Calif. Miss King has many friends in Norfolk, having resided at the Naval Base with her parents during Captain King's duty here as commanding officer of the Naval Air Station.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas P. Bernard entertained at one of the most delightful parties of the season at Schofield Barracks recently, when Col. James P. Barney announced the engagement of Miss Francis Virginia Bernard to Lt. John H. Sampson, Jr., FA, USA.

The Artillery Brigade Club was chosen as the setting for the party and it was decorated with a profusion of Easter lilies, pepper branches and ferns. A charming color scheme of pink and blue was carried out in the decorations on the tea tables, pink roses, blue lace flowers and tall tapers being used.

The wedding will take place early in September. Miss Bernard is a granddaughter of Maj. and Mrs. A. A. De Loffre, MC, USA.

A beautiful and impressive ceremony was the marriage of Miss Mary Louise Jones, daughter of Lt. Col. Alexander H. Jones, USA, and Mrs. Jones, to Lt. Frank X. A. Purcell, Jr., Corps of Engineers, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. X. A. Purcell, of East Orange, N. J., which was solemnized at the Officers' Club of Corozal, Canal Zone, Ch. John D. Dignan officiating, June 23, 1931.

The marriage vows were exchanged

Financial Digest

INTEREST in the rails admittedly is at an extremely low ebb, as low perhaps as at any time during the current year, according to information received from E. A. Pierce and Co.

It does not seem likely that this necessarily indicates a high degree of unattractiveness and the opinion cannot be escaped that if general business is to improve during coming months, the rails are in as promising a position as the industrials to benefit thereby. Furthermore, it is difficult to visualize a situation where the industrials will gradually climb to better prices, with the sounder rails standing still or losing ground. If the industrials are to advance, it is likely that the rails will advance also.

Buying operations in a number of issues apparently have been suspended, and it is not likely that there will be any marked change in the character of the market in the near future, but it is likely that it will become one of individual issues, with the surface picture complicated by considerable switching in an endeavor to replace unsatisfactory situations with those which appear to hold more promise.

before an improvised altar and arch of tropical palms and coffee roses; tall brass candlesticks holding cathedral candles flanked both sides of the altar. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered through an aisle formed by garlands of white roses, and was preceded by Miss Priscilla Moody, daughter of Lt. Col. Lucien Moody, and Miss May Griffin, daughter of Capt. Schenck Griffin, flower girls, who wore frocks of green and white organdy. Mr. James F. O'Brien, of Newark, N. J., acted as Lieutenant Purcell's best man.

The wedding was carried out with military formality, the 24 officers of the 11th Engineers forming an arch of drawn sabers under which the bride and groom passed. Mrs. Robinson, wife of Lieutenant Robinson, sang "At Dawning" and "O Promise Me," before the entrance of the bridal party.

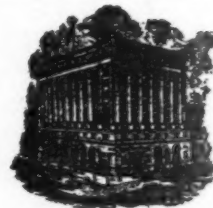

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony for the 150 guests, including the Governor of the Panama Canal and Mrs. Harry Burgess, Col. and Mrs. S. Conrad Babcock, Col. and Mrs. Aubrey Lippincott, Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. A. Ardery, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Jones received with the bride and groom.

Later in the afternoon, Lieutenant and Mrs. Purcell boarded a plane for Colon, where they took passage on a steamer for Costa Rica, where they will spend two weeks, after which they will be at home at Corozal for the coming year, until Lieutenant Purcell's tour of duty is ended.

Lieutenant Purcell, who is a graduate of West Point class of 1926 and of the Engineer School, received his engineering degree at Cornell in 1923. Miss Jones attended Westminster College at Salt Lake City, Utah, before coming to Panama.

AN OMISSION

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
ON the issue of the Army and Navy Journal, of June 13, 1931, you published a list of Cadet graduates under the heading "Sons of the Service."

Since this list was "revised" a second time and the revision was reported as having been made at West Point, I desire to invite your attention to the graduation of Cadet Chester J. Diestel, son of George B. Diestel, who, for many years, was Sergeant and Assistant Battalion Leader in the Military Academy Band.

The author of the "revised" list is not accused of flagrant discrimination, but Cadet Diestel's position on the graduation list and his subsequent assignment to the Coast Artillery Corps, disclose high academic honors and add further to merit the admission that his father is also a "Member of the Service."

FA GUNNERS' EXAMINATION

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
I HAVE before me your issue of July 11, and among the many other good things which it contains I find a letter signed "For Justice," and written on the subject of Examination for Gunners Field Artillery as provided in TR 430-175.

It needs but a cursory glance at the provisions of the above mentioned regulations to see clearly its provisions and requirements excludes the Field Artillery of the National Guard practically as a body. Anyone who has ever had experience in training enlisted personnel of the National Guard knows that generally speaking it approaches the impossible to attempt to qualify as high as ten per cent of an organization in conformity with these regulations. On the other hand the National Guard Infantry has a tremendous advantage to start with in their training for qualification with their basic weapon. They can go out to the range and fire the course just the same as the Regular Army does. It goes without saying that they do not have the time for preliminary training and preparation previous to firing that the Regulars have, but they can at least fire the course, while it is quite out of the question to even attempt to examine the National Guard Field Artillery in conformity to TR 430-175.

Perhaps it might be possible to qualify a respectable number as 2nd class gunners, but as a rule they are not interested in this phase of the examination simply because they know that it is out of the question to go on further with the examination except in a few exceptional cases. Again the Infantry are at an advantage, because when they go out to fire, if a man can shoot well there is nothing this side the National Rifle Matches that can stop him. Many National Guardsmen qualify as sharpshooter and expert with the rifle, but how many expert gunners, FA, do you find? Exactly none. The reason is not far to seek. The provisions for qualifying with the primary weapon F. A., are based upon wrong principals. The primary weapon of an artilleryman is the cannon with his organization is armed and not a telephone, a sextant, or a map.

The Infantry has telephones, range-finders, maps, and field glasses, etc., why make their shooting examination all with the rifle. Every Field Artilleryman should be a cannoneer first, then a gunner, regardless of what his permanent (?) assignment in his organization is to be. And they should be allowed the opportunity to qualify as experts on their primary weapon just as is the Infantry.

and Mrs. Douglass Potts, both of whom have hosts of friends in Atlanta, since General Potts served for four years as the commanding officer of the Department of the Gulf, and they made their home on Columbia avenue during their stay in Atlanta. Miss Alice Williams was elected as vice president, and is one of the popular members of society in Ft. McPherson. Miss Josephine Blanchard, who was elected secretary and treasurer, is well known among both civilian and military circles since she is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Blanchard, who make their home on Piedmont avenue in Atlanta, Colonel Blanchard being on duty with the Georgia National Guard.

Serving on the executive board with the president will be Miss Ruth Peck, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert Peck, and Miss Augusta Cheston, daughter of Col. and Mrs. D. M. Cheston of Ft. McPherson. The club will meet once each month, and these meetings will be for the purpose of cementing friendships, and will take place at the homes of the members.

Among those who yesterday either were present or sent their request for membership were Miss Sarah Green, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Green; Miss Edith Kendrick, daughter of Mrs. William J. Kendrick, and the late Colonel Kendrick; Miss Laurita Falisi, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. J. Vincent Falisi, of Washington, D.C., who formerly made their home in Ft. McPherson; Miss Peggy Steger, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John Overton Steger; Miss Doris Macklin, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Walter Macklin; Miss Norma McNair and Miss Dorothy McNair, daughters of Col. and Mrs. William S. McNair, and Mrs. E. A. Sterling, Jr., of Laredo, Tex.; Mrs. Charles Weir Crankshaw, and Miss Georgia Pepper, daughters of Col. and Mrs. Kelton L. Pepper.

Other names will be added at the next meeting which will take place at an early date, the time and place to be announced later. It is hoped that the organization will be the means of bringing together all the daughters of the Regular Army who live close enough to Atlanta to attend these meetings.

Naval ROTC Cruise

THREE hundred and five students of the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps units at Yale University, Harvard University, Northwestern University, Georgia School of Technology, University of Washington, and University of California, have completed their annual practice cruise.

The Naval ROTC students of the Universities of California and Washington cruised in the USS Oklahoma, battleship of the Battle Force, from San Francisco and Seattle to Hawaii and return. One hundred and ninety-two students of all classes engaged in this cruise during which they were instructed in and performed the manifold duties required of officers serving in a naval vessel. Seamanship, navigation, engineering and gunnery were part of the subjects in which the naval students were instructed. A target practice was fired by the students in the vicinity of Hawaii, guns of all batteries being used.

On the east coast the Naval ROTC units of the junior class cruised in the destroyers of the Training Squadron, Scouting Force; USS Evans, USS Fairfax, USS Philip and USS Tillman. The cruise was made from the Delaware Breakwater to Bermuda and return. The students were instructed in all phases of the duties of a destroyer officer, handling the vessels during maneuvers and firing a special target practice, during which they performed the duties of the gun crew. On the Bermuda cruise there were 19 students from Northwestern, 39 from Georgia Tech, 28 from Yale and 27 from Harvard.

In August a cruise will be taken on the USS Arkansas, training ship, by the freshmen and sophomores of the NROTC of Northwestern, Georgia Tech, Yale and Harvard.

Camp Bullis CMTC

THE CMTC at Camp Bullis, Tex., commanded by Brig. Gen. Halstead Dorey, has just completed a successful 30 day training period.

This camp was composed of about 1100 candidates, organized as two battalions. The basic battalion consisted of four rifle companies of about 160 candidates each, and the advanced battalion included the Headquarters Company, Machine Gun Company, Signal Company, and one Battery of Field Artillery.

To increase interest in training, use was made of the so-called Honor Flag, which was presented to the company in each battalion considered to have made greatest progress in training each week. This competition was repeated each week and a formal presentation, with band participating, was made to each company winning the flag.

A similar flag, designated as the Merit Flag, was used to inspire interest in camp sanitation and neat tent arrangements. This system worked admirably and kept up interest throughout the entire period. Final winners of the Honor Flag were: Basic Co. A, CMTC, commanded by Capt. Austin Triplett, 23rd Inf.; Advanced, Headquarters Company CMTC, commanded by Capt. L. M. Hester, 23rd Inf.

Marksmanship with all arms was conducted on July 1 and July 2, one day being devoted to instruction practice and one day to record practice. Qualification with the rifle was .67 plus %.

A feature of this camp was the final four-day march and maneuver. Daily marches of 8-9 miles with full pack were made, with a simple tactical problem using blank ammunition and an outlined enemy during the march. Shelter tents were pitched as soon as units arrived in camp. Two of these camps were pitched to avoid observation from hostile aircraft, and one as a model peace time camp. Each evening a camp fire was built and a program of entertainment was provided by candidates.

Gas Use Explained

as it is much more difficult to protect against the liquid than against the vapor.

"There is no possibility that the United States will ever use gas in war unless it is first used by the enemy, but writers of all nationalities assert repeatedly that gas will undoubtedly be used in the next war. We must, then, be ready to protect against it in its worst form, that is mustard gas sprayed from airplanes. The Chemical Warfare Service has developed, in addition to the mask for use against ordinary gases, protective clothing which gives excellent protection against mustard gas in the vapor form, and considerable protection against the liquid form. Experiments have been made at Edgewood Arsenal this Spring and Summer, with actual sprinkling of mustard gas in liquid form from airplanes for the purpose of determining the exact amount of protection afforded by the present protective clothing, and devising means for improving it.

"Even with the crude means of protection available in the World War, chemical agents caused only one-twelfth as many deaths in proportion to the number of casualties produced by them, as was the case with other weapons. Also, it is unanimously reported by the doctors of all countries that there are practically no bad after effects in gas cases which recover. With the present improved protection, this record would be bettered in a future war, so that there is absolutely no excuse for the wild statements sometimes published that cities could be wiped out by dropping on them a few bombs filled with chemicals. In the first place, much more damage would result from the dropping of high explosive bombs on cities, as these would destroy buildings, and a great deal of time would be required to repair the damage. If chemical agents were dropped on cities in bombs or sprayed from airplanes, the effect would be greatly localized, only a few people in the immediate vicinity would be affected as the buildings would furnish a great deal of protection and it would be a comparatively simple matter to neutralize the chemicals on the ground. In the second place, chemical agents would not be wasted in this manner, because they could be used with much greater effect on concentrations of troops. But even in this use, there would be no great loss of life, not so much as with high explosive bombs, on account of the protection available against chemicals. A large number of men might be temporarily disabled but by far the greater number of them would recover, and recover completely.

"Thus, it is seen that while there is no reason to be afraid of what may happen in case of war, it is necessary to prepare for all eventualities, and the Chemical Warfare Service is doing its part."

Errors in Naval Register

DUE to the great amount of detail necessary in the make up of the annual Navy Register, it frequently happens that errors are included or that officers are not given credit for certain qualifications. All officers are requested by the Bureau of Navigation to make it a practice to examine the register for errors and report such as are found to the Bureau of Navigation. Such corrections will be included in the subsequent issue.
